

Music

We believe that all children deserve the right to experience, achieve and enjoy music at St Alphege, and we see the value that music has in enhancing well-being and joy through the practice of singing to a high standard.

Learning and teaching of music is not only based around the four areas covered in the National Curriculum (listening, composing, performing and evaluating) but also is embedded in our cross-curricular approach to learning.

We are lucky to have a talented staff with music specialism, both within school and through the weekly teaching from a professional musician who enhances provision across the school, and gives the children exciting opportunities to try out instruments take part in performance and sing in our choir.

Through weekly whole school singing, all the children are taught British Sign Language, which they are able to demonstrate proudly in performance in school, at the church and in cross school opportunities that we regularly take part in.

We are active members of our Coastal Alliance choir and musicians are often invited to perform to the children, which provide a real insight into different musical styles. Our latest TED team are helping to develop an outdoor musical stage as an area of playground development.
